VEGETINE.

HEROWN WORDS. HEROWN WORDS.

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 13th, 1817.—Mr. H. R.
Stevens: Dear Sir—Since several years I have got a sore and very painful foct. I had some physicians but they couldn't cure me. Now I have heard of your Vegetine from a lady who was sich hard long time, and became all well
from your Vegetine, and I went and bought me
one bottle of Vegetine; and after I had used one bottle, the pains left me, and it began to heal, and then I bought one other bottle, and so I take it yet. I thank God for this remedy and yourit yet. I thank God for this remedy and your-self; and wishing every sufferer may pay atten-tion to it. It is a blessing for health. Mrs. C. Krabe, 638 West Balt. st.

SAFE AND SURE.

Mr. H. R. Stevens: In 1872 your Vegetine was recommended to me, and, yielding to the persuasions of a friend, I consented to try it. At the time I was suffering from general debility and nervous prostration, superinduced by overwork and irregular habits. Its wonderful strengthening and curative properties seemed to affect my debilitated system from the first dose; and under its persistent use I rapidly recovered, gaining more than usual health and good feeling. Since then I have not hesitated to give Vegetine my most unqualified endorsement, as being a safe, sure and powerful agent in probeing a safe, sure and powerful agent in promoting health and restoring the wasted system to new life and energy. Vogetine is the only medicine I use; and as long as I live I never expect to find a better. Yours truly,
W. H. CLARK, 120 Monterey st.,
Alleghany, Pennsylvania.

VEGETINE

THE BEST SPRING MEDICINE. Charlestown—H. R. Stevens: Dear Sir—This is to certify that I have used your "Blood Preparation" in my family for several years, and think that for Scrofula or Cankerous Rumors or Rheumatic Affections it cannot be excelled; and as a blood purifier and spring medicine it is the best thing I have ever used, and I have used atmost everything. I can cheerfully recommend it to any one in need of such a medicine. Yours, respectfully, Mrs. A. A. DINSMORE, 19 Russell st.

VEGETINE

WHAT IS NEEDED.

Boston, Feb. 13th, 1871.—H. R. Stevens, esq: Dear Sir—About one year since I found myself in a feeble condition from general debility. Vegetine was strongly recommended to me by a friend who had been much benefitted by its use. I procured the article, and, after using several bottles, was restored to health, and discontinued its use. I feel quite confident that there is no medicine superior to it for those complaints for which it is especially prepared, and would cheerfully recommend it to those who feel that they need something to restore them to perfect health. Respectfully yours. U. L. PETTINGILL. Firm of S. M. Pettingill & Co., No. 10 State street, Boston.

Stevens, eq.—Dear Sir: I have had dyspepsia in its worst form for the last ten years, and have taken hundreds of dollars' worth of medicines without obtaining any relief. In September last I commenced taking the Vegetine, since which time my health has steadily improved. My food digests well, and I have gained fifteen pounds of flesh. There are several others in this place taking Vegetine, and all have obtained relief. Yours truly.

The Ugly Prince.

In the early days there lived a Kieg Sakuni, who enjoyed the friendship of the great god Indra. He was rich and powerful, but the fact that he was childless long made him sad. At length, Indra took compassion upon him, and his wives all bore him sons. One of these, Kusa by name, the son of Sakuni's chief queen, had "a face like unto that of a lion, the eighteen marks of ugliness, and an exceedingly powerful frame." On account of his plainness he was long disliked by his father. But at length Kusa's prowess in battle, or, rather, his success, due to magic implements given to him by Indra, reconciled Sakuci to his hideous son.

After his other sons were married the king tried to find a wife for Kusa, but for a long time unsuccessfully, for all the neighboring monarchs exclaimed:—"We are ready to give our daughters, but not to Kusa." At last, however, a bride was found, and the marriage took place; but she was never allowed to set her eyes upon her husband, who was kept out of her sight during the day, so she was unaware that he was hideous. Nor was he aware of his own ugioess. for he had never been allowed to see a mirror, and had always been prevented from bathing, for fear that the water might serve as a looking glass and let him know what manner of man he was. Unfortunately, one day his wife caught sight of him as he sported with his brothers, and asked who that "demon" was that she saw amid her brothers in law.

Hearing that it was her husband, she deterined to obtain a view of him when he visited her at night. So she lighted a lamp and conoealed it under a basin. And when her husband was with her she suddenly removed the coverness, whereupen she shricked. "A demon! a demon!" and fled. Her deserted husband followed her to her father's home. Under various disguises he pleased her by his skil; but cach time that she obtained a good view of the usknown stranger, whose performances at a distance had won her good will, she uttered the same cry of herror and fled from him. There came an opportunity for him to display his matchless strength and courage, which his wife admired so much that she resolved to over come her dislike, and once more to accept him as her husband. It happened one day, however, that Kusa found himself overcome by weariness in the neighborhood of a river. So he went down to the water to bathe. And as he stood in the stream he suddenly caught sight of his likeness in the water and exclaimed; "As I have the eighteen marks of ulginess, and a face like that of a lion, and as on that account this king's daughter has no liking for me, it is useless for such a one as I am to continue living. I will go and kill myself." So he went into a thicket with the intention of hanging himself, But, when he was on the point of doing so, Indra called to him from heaver, told him to take courage, and gave him a jewel to wear on his forehead, which had the rower of efficing his ug inces and making him, so long as he wore it, look like other men .--After which all went well with him; and he who had been like unto a beast, lived happily with the beauty, who had already forgiven him his ugliness in consideration of his military merits.
